Deeley at left and Bob Barmes. He was a farm boy from Vincennes Indiana. We got a letter from his mom a few months after he got out saying he had been killed falling from a corn silo. I noticed a couple of years back there is a Clint Barmes playing for the Rockies and he is also from Vincennes. Probably related. Those barracks were pretty nice! ---Remember "Pop" the elderly janitor?

From out the back window of barracks--the EM club. (It really looks like a fire trap!)

Photo #005

This is the first of a series of pics from a party that was held at the EM club. Bob Jarrett sent them. I talked to him over the phone about the party. I honestly have no recollection of it. ---But I'm in the pics, so I guess I was there. Actually, I think there are a lot of places I went over there and can't remember.

--too much beer or now I'm too old. Lot's of familiar faces.

That might be the Headquarter's CO-- Colonel Hyde??? ('Looks like he couldn't put that cigarette down)

Photo #007

I thought the troops were supposed to be fed first!
Look at all that wood! If this caught fire it would probably have gone up in 2 minutes. Thanks for all the windows.

Photo #008

Some of your pals, I think. Berra at left, then Haas??, then Provenzano, and ???

Photo #009

Is that the Chinese doctor at left? Seems at one time we had a company clerk that was Asian and from California.

Photo #010

Someone entertaining the troops with the guitar

Photo #011

There's Lt. Gil Dougherty at left looking mighty sharp-and sooo young! I think these two were Warrant Officer.

Photo #012

That's me at far left. I believe Rashid is by the wall painting. On the wall is a poster "Welcome Big 57 CO Party"

Photo #013

Lot's of familiar faces. Are you anywhere in here?

Photo #014

This was a rare "company formation." I think we had one of these for an IG inspection one time. As I recall the motor pool's job for the IG inspection was to dispatch on the road as many vehicle as possible, so they weren't around for inspection. Does this ring a bell, Dom?

Photo #015

Headquarters building at far right. Nice collection of cars. 'Bet you can name all the years and makes.
A collection like this must be worth several hundred thousand dollar now--in this condition.
I'd love to have that Buick wagon! Note helicopter in background.

Photo #016

I think this was Bob Jarrett's bunk. He was one shaped-up soldier!

Photo #017

Downtown Kaiserslautern. I read one time that this area was the largest community of Americans outside of the U.S.

“Seven Steps to Hell”

Photo #020

That's Bob Jarrett on the right and PFC ????

Photo #021

In "civies"--Bob Jarrett, Fettig, Don Deeley (Downtown Kaiserslautern)

Photo #022

EM club. Bob's Mercedes and my Hillman. --Damn, that convertible was cold in the winter! What was I thinking?

Photo #023

Deeley touching up ID number on a new sedan. Not sure, but I think the jeep belong to the EOD squad.

Photo #024

New Chevy and Deeley

Photo #025

Deeley and Rashid—Coming back from Starbucks. Nice looking sedans.

Photo #026

Dougherty and ??? I think the guy in the middle smoked stoggies. If that rings any bells.

Photo #027

Recognize anyone? Crawford was a recent immigrant from Scotland and worked in the drafting room with me.

I could hardly understand him most of the time. Saunders I believe was English. Al Taylor was in S2 and 3.

Well educated and a nice guy. Jarrett told me he ran into him years ago while selling books and media.

Seems Al Taylor was the president of a small college down south. Don't remember anything about Waugh.

Carson was from the south, a college grad, music major.
